Stoneware Policy Statement on Videotaping & Recording & Copying

Stoneware does not allow videotaping, audio taping, and recording of any kind during training classes. Stoneware training manuals are copyright protected and are not for distribution.

The term videotaping in this policy means the capture of moving images, with or without the addition of sound, by use of computer, digital camera, conventional video tape, film, or any other similar technology.

The term audio taping in this policy means the capture of sound by use of computer, digital recording, conventional tape, video, film or any other similar technology.

The term copyright protected in this policy means the documentation, training manuals, or any other printed material provided by Stoneware cannot be copied, distributed, adapted for other works, licensed, transferred or assigned.
